

Inspiring Confidence: A No Fear Approach to Ethics

Emery Mikel, MA, ATR-BC, LCAT, LCPAT

Abstract: Spend a day using art and creativity to explore the many areas of ethics that art therapists should be aware of throughout their careers. Often viewed with uncertainty and nervousness, ethical guidelines can actually be actively used to support a therapist and take some of the pressure off when dilemmas do arise. Join us to learn how to engage with the AATA and ATCB ethical guidelines from a place of no fear and, dare we say, excitement!

Bio: Emery Mikel is founder and director of Water & Stone, a Creative Arts Therapy PLLC in Brooklyn, NY, with a master's degree in Transpersonal Counseling Psychology: Art Therapy from Naropa University. Her focus is on working with adults dealing with learning or developmental disabilities, Alzheimer's disease, grief, loss, and related topics. She also mentors creative arts therapists interested in private practice and wrote a book with that in mind, The Art of Business: A Guide for Creative Arts Therapists Starting on a Path to Self-Employment, published by JKP in 2013. Along with running her business, she also supervises interns and guest lectures at George Washington University, along with facilitating continuing education workshops for professionals.
